ALLIED PUSH GOES ON OVER MANY WIDE FRONTS

By Lowell Mellett

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

With The British Army in France, September 4, 11.35 a. m.—Evidences are piling up that the Germans are retreating from Wytschaete and Messines Ridge. (These ridges in Flanders between Lens and Armentieres were the scene of most desperate fighting last April.)

(By United Press)

Crossing of the North Canal by the British troops was officially announced on the western front today. Announcement that General Haig's troops had crossed that important stream was made semi-officially in London.

Shortly after the French war office said officially that French and American forces late yesterday and during the night had advanced in the Noyon-Soissons region, crossing the Vesle river.

Several towns and villages were taken by the British today. These included Haute-Allaines, more than 2 miles north of Peronne where the North Canal was crossed. Ecourt-St. Quentin, Rumancourt, Hermies, Croix-du-Bac and three other villages were taken in the North Canal region. The push is continuing.

Fresh advances were made by the British, French and American forces operating against the enemy over wide fronts in France and Belgium today.

The principal developments reported up to noon included:

Advance of General Mangin's troops to the edge of the Vaux-Aillon table land and a gradual progress toward Chemin-des-Dames in an effort to flank the enemy front along the Vesle;

Crossing of the Vesle at several points by the French and Americans and at the outskirts of Coucy-le-Chateau;

Continued advance of the Franco-Americans in the Noyon-Soissons region;

Penetration of the village of Marquion and half way between Arras and Cambrai on the main highway between these two cities British armored cars penetrated;

Advance of the British to a line on the North Canal;

Movement of the German main headquarters according to a leading Paris newspaper from Spa, Belgium, to Verviers, approximately ten miles north of Spa, in Belgium;

Capture of from 3,000 to 4,000 prisoners yesterday of whom not less than 1,500 were taken by the Franco-Americans;

Cambrai and Douai were both menaced today by General Haig's big Flanders push. (Announcement of the capture of Lens was premature. Late reports from General Haig declared that the British forces were on the western outskirts of the city and the advance was being hotly contested.) British batteries have taken heavy toll of the enemy and have reduced his fighting considerably.

Indications today were that this week would be even greater than the last week in its richness of results to the advantage of the Allies. Critics yesterday stated that the Allied accomplishments of the last week were even greater than any for a similar period.

The French official statement detailed the capture of Chapitre Wood northeast of Chevilly and the village of Buissy to the south. Advance elements are nearing Griselles. The outskirts of Bray and Clamancy have been reached. General Haig detailed minor successes in rapid operations on all fronts not included in the heavy fighting.

General Byng's army took 1,946 prisoners and 22 field guns in 24 hours ending last night when the British occupied Rumancourt. They relieved 40 civilians who had been in the town the entire time the Germans held it. (Rumancourt is less than 9 miles northeast of Cambrai.) North of Lens enemy counter attacks drove the British back but the British went ahead with another assault and soon re-established their guns. Early today 720 prisoners had been counted.

AUGUST 24 REGISTRANTS DUE FOR EARLY OCT. CALL

Local Selective Service headquarters is in receipt of the following calls for special induction:

No. 1290 is for 257 Pennsylvanians to report to Lehigh University, South Bethlehem, Pa., for instruction as carpenters, concrete workers, electricians, general mechanics and telegraphers.

Call No. 1297 for 330 men to report to University of Pittsburgh for instruction as auto mechanics.

Call no 1299 for 108 men to report to Bowman Technical School, Lancaster, Pa., for instruction as instrument repairmen.

Registrants inducted under these calls must have a grammar school education.

Call No. 1313 is for 75 expert mechanical draftsmen to entrain for Camp Meade, Md., Sept. 18th, to report to Commanding Officer, Ordnance Corps. Open until Sept. 10th.

The Selective Board also received the following instructions which should be of interest to our readers.

Referring to telegram No. 8-2735 (Circular letter No. 404), attention is directed to the fact that October calls will be extremely hard to fill and will severely test the ability of the Selective Service machinery to produce men.

The men qualified for General Military Service in Class One of the June 5th, 1917, and June 5th, 1918 registrations will be practically exhausted on September 30th, while calls have not been issued for all the men included therein, additional calls will be announced shortly for entrainment during the latter part of September.

The men who registered August 24th, will be needed to fill the early October calls. This will require unusual effort on the part of Local and District Boards.

The entrainment under October calls will probably be during the first week in October. The initial October quotas for General Service men will be apportioned so as not to exceed fifty per cent. of the men who registered on August 24th, and later calls will be used to exhaust the remaining Class One.

In order that the August 24th registrants may be available for call at the earliest possible moment the President directs that the paragraph of Section 122 S. S. R. be suspended until further orders and the following procedure substituted therefore: PHYSICAL EXAMINATION. Immediately upon classification in Class One by the Local Board of any registrant of the August 24th class in behalf of whom no claim has been made for deferred classification on the ground of engagement of industry or agriculture, and regardless of any appeal to the District Board in his case, the Local Board shall mail to the last known address of any such registrant so placed in Class One a notice (Form 1009) to appear for physical examination at a time and place to be designated in said notice (which time shall be five days from the date of the mailing of the notice), and shall enter the date of mailing of said notice in column 19 of the Classification List. Immediately after the District Board has placed a registrant of the August 24th class in Class One by whom or in whose behalf a claim has been made on agricultural or industrial grounds the procedure respecting his immediate physical examination outlined above will be followed. Nothing in these instructions shall be construed as authorizing the physical examination of any registrant of the August 24th class who is in a deferred class on any grounds.

Every effort must be made in ample time for October First entrainment the classification and physical examination of the August 24th, 1918, registrants.

Further developments are looked for shortly.

U. S. ARTILLERY ASSISTS FRENCH IN THEIR DRIVE

By Fred S. Ferguson

With the American Army in France Sept. 4—American artillery continued to aid the French in pounding away toward Chemin Des Dames. The guns have been removed from Juvigny and are shelling the enemy positions. During the past 24 hours American guns have been making a smoke screen to cover up the movements of French and American infantry. The artillery work today received high praise from the French commander. The enemy today showed increasing signs of nervousness as the French's tenth army continued to push on. His observation balloons have been drawn back and many other signs indicated preparations for a withdrawal rapidly when necessary.

JUDGMENT ENTERED FOR MEN IN HYDE WAGE DISPUTE

The suits of fourteen former employees against the Cassidy Coal Company were heard before Judge Chorpren yesterday and after all had been heard the justice gave judgment in each case for the amount claimed.

These suits grew out of a wage difference at the bucket line mine of the Cassidy Company located at Hyde City. The company since April 1st last was paying $1.06 per ton for mining coal, the district price. Up to that time they had been paying $1.11, but following the recent wage agreement in the district went back to the agreed upon scale price.

About August 1st some dissatisfaction was found to exist among the men and a demand was made for the extra five cents per ton.

Acting under orders of the Central Operators Association the company refused the request and shortly after the first of the month the men quit working, removed their tools from the mine and sought work elsewhere.

A clause in the recent wage agreement provides that where a miner strikes and quits work pending the adjustment of a wage dispute he shall be fined $1.00 per day for each day he remains idle.

The Cassidy Company contends that their walkout was a strike and that their former employees were liable for the dollar per day fine under the wage agreement. Part of a two week's pay was due the thirty-five or forty men affected when they quit and when the regular pay day arrived about the middle of the month, acting under the advice of Secretary Forsyth of the Operators' Association, the Cassidy people refused to pay the men their wages. When a demand was made for same the men were informed that the money due them would be held as security for the payment of the fines due under the penalty clause in the wage agreement.

The men alleged that inasmuch as they did not strike, but just quit and secured other employment, they were not liable for any penalty, and employing A. R. Chase, Esq., had him bring suit against the company for the wages due.

In all fourteen suits were brought and Tuesday, September 3d, fixed for the hearing of same. The hearings were had in twelve of the cases yesterday and Justice Chorpren gave judgment against the coal company in each case. Two of the cases were continued because the plaintiff failed to appear.

Judge John W. Reed, of Reed, Boulton & Forsyth, attorneys for the Operators' Association, appeared for the Cassidy people but contented himself with examining witnesses for the purpose of supporting the contention that the men had struck, and having a copy of the testimony taken. He presented no witnesses and offered no defense to the suits.

Further developments are looked for shortly.

The Kaiser as I Knew Him for Fourteen Years

By ARTHUR N. DAVIS, D. D., S.

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

CHAPTER II.

The Kaiser at Potsdam. Getting out of Germany proved to be a far more difficult proposition than I had imagined.

Realizing that it would probably be several months before I could finally settle up my affairs, and that my child, who was anemic, ought to be taken out of Germany with as little delay as possible because food conditions were fast going from bad to worse, I applied to the commandantur for leave to have my wife and child go to Montreux, on Lake Geneva, Switzerland, where I hoped to join them at the earliest possible moment and accompany them home. I did not relish the idea of their going across the ocean without me.

That was in May, 1917. Weeks passed while our application was going from one official to another, lying, perhaps for days at a time under a pile of other applications of a similar character or awaiting the investigation of our personal histories, and it was not until the end of June that we received any word regarding it. Then we learned that it had been denied.

This was my first intimation that we might have difficulty in getting out of Germany.

A day or two later the Kaiser called on me professionally and I told him of our plight, hoping that he would intercede for us. It was the only favor of a personal character I had ever asked of him.

"My child is ailing, your majesty," I said, "and I feel that she needs a change of climate. I applied to the commandantur for leave for my wife and child to go to Montreux, but I have just heard that it has been refused."

"Davis, I will see what I can do in the matter," he replied reassuringly, and as he was leaving my office he turned to me and said in the presence of his two adjutants: "Regarding that matter you spoke of, leave it to me and I will see what I can do."

The Kaiser's influence would readily solve our problem, I thought, and I was very much relieved. Two days later, however, I received a letter from Count von Moltke, one of the Kaiser's adjutants, stating that the Kaiser had spoken to him regarding the Switzerland project, but, under the circumstances, it was out of the question. If, however, my child's condition were such as to make a change of climate really necessary, he added, the Kaiser suggested that a trip to the Austrian Tyrol might perhaps be arranged, as the climate there was just as good as that of Switzerland, but before permission would be granted, for that trip it would be necessary to obtain a certificate from the district doctor stating that it was necessary.

As the food situation in Austria was just as bad as it was in Germany, if not worse, that idea didn't appeal to me at all, and I went immediately to the commandantur and explained the situation to them.

When they saw Count von Moltke's letter the officer in charge threw up his hands.

"That's final," he declared. "That comes from a higher authority than ours. It is useless to pursue the matter any further. We received a communication from his majesty regarding your case, but the matter was left entirely to our discretion. It was not a command, only a request from his majesty. A command, of course, would have been different."

Then I applied for a pass for my wife, child and myself to go to America. They pointed out to the commandantur that as my wife's application to leave Berlin preceded mine, it was possible she would be allowed to leave before me. I told the officer that that would suit me admirably, as I wanted the pass for Mrs. Davis and the child granted at the earliest possible moment regardless of what action might be taken on my own application.

Again there followed a long period of anxious waiting while the German red tape slowly unwound, but eventually, in September, we received word that Mrs. Davis and the child might leave Berlin for Copenhagen between October 10 and 12. They left on the tenth.

A day or two later commenced the German offensive against Riga, on the Baltic. Within three or four days the Germans captured successively the Oesel, Runo, Obro and Moon Islands in the Gulf of Riga and then carried their invasion to the mainland. Their apparent objective was Petrograd and on October 19 the Russians announced that the seat of the government would be removed from Petrograd to Moscow.

These successes on the Baltic failed to overcome the depression in Germany caused by the serious internal situation in Austria at this period. Mun-factories were being wrecked by hunger-crased and war-weary strikers, and the populace was being shot down in great numbers in the food riots which developed in various parts of Austria. Not since the war began had the outlook been so discouraging for the Germans.

Then, on October 24, just as things were looking their blackest, the great German-Austro offensive against the Italians was started. In three days the Italians were swept out of Austria and the Teutons pressed forward to the passes west of the Isonzo river, toward the Venetian plains. By the end of October the Italian armies were in full retreat. Before this offensive was over the Germans captured, they claimed, no less than 300,000 prisoners and several thousand big guns, besides vast stores of munitions and supplies.

The exultation of the Germans over the triumph of their armies in Italy knew no bounds. While it was at its height I had an interview with the Kaiser which will ever remain one of the most vivid in my memory.

It was about three-thirty one Sunday morning when I was aroused by a maid who, in an awe-stricken tone of voice, announced that the Neue Falala, the Kaiser's palace at Potsdam, was on the phone. I went to the telephone and was informed that the Kaiser was suffering from a toothache and would send his adjutant for me within an hour or so.

I got up at once and packed my instruments, and at six-thirty the Kaiser's big gray Mercedes limousine arrived. Besides the chauffeur there was an outsider carrying the bugle which signifies notes only the Kaiser may use. While the shell room and other apartments were accessible to visitors before the war, no one was ever permitted to visit the private apartments of the Kaiser upstairs.

On this occasion, however, I was guided right through the shell room, through a door opening on the left and up a wide staircase to the Kaiser's wardrobe, or dressing room.

There I found breakfast ready for me. It consisted of real coffee, real white bread, butter, marmalade, sugar, cream and cold meats. It was the first food of the kind I had eaten in some time and practically no one in Germany outside the royal family and the Junkers was any better off than I in that respect.

While I was breakfasting, the Kaiser was dressing. His valet entered several times, I noticed, to take out articles of clothing from the massive wardrobes which lined the room. I had just completed my meal when I received word that my patient was ready to receive me.

As I entered the Kaiser's bedroom he was standing in the center of the room, fully attired in an army gray uniform, but without his sword. He looked more haggard than I had ever seen him, except once in 1915. Lack of sleep and physical pain were two things with which he had had very little experience, and they certainly showed their effects very plainly.

He didn't seem to be in the best of humor but greeted me cordially enough and shook hands.

"In all my life, Davis," he said, "I have never suffered so much pain."

I expressed my sorrow and started to improvise a dental chair out of an upholstered armchair on which I placed some pillows and, as the Kaiser sat down, he laughingly remarked: "Look here, Davis, you've got to do something for me. I can't fight the whole world, you know, and have a toothache!"

When I was through and his pain was relieved, his spirits seemed to revive appreciably, and he explained why it was he was so anxious to have his tooth trouble removed as quickly as possible.

"I must go down to Italy, Davis," he said, "to see what my noble troops have accomplished. My gracious, what we have done to them down there! Our offensive at Riga was just a feint. We had advertised our intended offensive in Italy so thoroughly that the Italians thought we couldn't possibly intend to carry it through. For three months it was common talk in Germany, you remember, that the great offensive would start in October, and so the Italians believed it was all a bluff and when we advanced on Riga they were sure of it. They thought we were so occupied there that we could pay no attention to them, and so we caught them napping!"

The Kaiser's face fairly beamed as he dwelt on the strategy of his generals and the successful outcome of their Italian campaign.

"For months Italy had been engaged in planting her big guns on the mountain-tops and gathering mountains of

A COURT OF INTERNATIONAL JUSTICE

It is not surprising that the stock market treats peace rumors with contempt, and that its movements are governed by other and more tangible influence. Suggestions, not all coming from Germany, are sufficiently absurd. They propose that the burglar on trial shall be punished by the surrender of that part of his loot which is already spent or destroyed, and in order not to wound his sensitive honor, he shall be allowed to retain his jimmy.

German pleas in defense are sufficiently remarkable in all conscience. They irresistibly recall that veracious story of Mark Twain, of the young man who had murdered his mother and father in atrocious circumstances. When asked by the judge, before sentence, what he had to offer in extenuation he pleaded for mercy on the ground that he was an orphan. There is the German plea ad misericordiam exactly.

But those who talk of peace conferences, even after Germany has unmistakably bowed to the will and superior power of the civilized world, completely fail to see the radical changes which the war has wrought. The old peace conference is dead. To Bourbons like Lord Lansdowne, steeped in the old methods of diplomacy, it seems possible to revive the old secret negotiations behind closed doors, with private bargains where those most concerned are least consulted and where the final outcome is enough to make the sacrificed soldiers turn in their honored graves.

But if we know our aims, and it is believed that we do, a peace settlement will be accomplished, not with all parties in the war represented, but by a court of justice with Germany in the dock. She will not be asked what she is willing to concede, but will be told what penalty she will be allowed and compelled to pay. On the moral obliquity and devastating ruin of her acts it is difficult to imagine a penalty which covers the case. But let our peace mongers be well assured that the decision involves a penalty and not a compromise.—Wall Street Journal.

LENS AND SOISSONS

Although all the afternoon papers yesterday carried stories of the effect that Lens had fallen to the British and this morning many of the daily papers cling tenaciously to their claim, the United Press today says that the report of the capture of Lens is premature. Here we have a case similar to the reported capture of Soissons a few weeks ago. As was the case at Soissons, the British advance on Lens has been so rapid that it was reasonable to believe that Lens was already in the hands of the Tommies. It will be remembered that Soissons was under gun fire for weeks before the Allies announced its capture and occupation and we may safely predict that Lens is to experience a similar bombardment. It is generally understood that before an army can occupy a given point, the territory opposite must be cleared of opposition and in view of the advances being made today all along the line, no doubt the big clearance is now under way and when the proper moment comes, Lens will be occupied by Haig's valiant troops. While we may feel disappointed that Lens is not safe and secure in British hands we have the satisfaction of knowing that from the Allied standpoint the gains made by the Allies in the last week are greater than in any preceding week. All things considered, the victory gained is great enough in itself to satisfy anybody.

The Kaiser as I Knew Him For Fourteen Years

ammunition and supplies and food and hospital supplies in the valleys below, in preparation for their twelfth Isouzo offensive.

"We let them go ahead and waited patiently for the right moment. They thought that their contemplated offensive must inevitably bring our weaker neighbor to her knees and force her to make a separate peace!" By "our weaker neighbor" the Kaiser, of course, referred to Austria, and how accurate was his information regarding Italy's expectations and how easily they might have been realized were subsequently revealed by the publication of that famous letter from Kaiser Karl to Prince Sixtus.

"And then," the Kaiser went on, "when their great offensive was within a week of being launched we broke through their lines on a slope 3,000 feet high, covered with snow, where they couldn't bring up their reserves or new guns, and we surrounded them!"

"We took practically everything they possessed—food enough to feed our entire army without calling upon our own supplies at all. Never before had our armies seen such an accumulation of ammunition. I must certainly go down to see it."

"We cut off their northern retreat and, as they swung their army to the south we captured 60,000 of them up to their knees in the rice fields. One of the great mistakes they made was in carrying their civilian refugees with them—clogging their narrow roads and impeding the retreat of their soldiers. We had taken possession of their most productive regions, and their retreat was through territory which yielded them nothing. Just think of that retreating army thrown upon the already impoverished inhabitants of that section. Why, they'll starve to death!"

"Everywhere we went we found their big guns abandoned. In one small village we came upon a gun decorated with flowers and surmounted with a portrait of Emperor Franz Josef. It had been put there by the Italian inhabitants of the village to show their happiness at being released at last from the yoke of the intolerable Italian lawyer government! How terribly the Italians must have treated them! Italy will never get over this defeat. This was real help from God! Now, we've got the allies!" and he struck his left hand with his right with great force to emphasize his apparent conviction that the turning point in the war had been reached with Italy's collapse.

That the Kaiser now regarded himself and his armies as invincible I felt, and I feared that the success in Italy would be followed at the first favorable opportunity by a gigantic offensive on the western front.

Indeed, on a subsequent occasion, when he called at my office for further treatment, and again referred to the Italian triumph, he remarked: "If our armies could capture 300,000 Italians—and those 300,000 might just as well be dead as far as Italy is concerned—we can do the same thing against our enemies on the west!"

This was one of the interviews I was so anxious to report to the representatives of the American intelligence department at our legation in Copenhagen and later on, when I finally arrived in that city, I related it in great detail to them. I remained in Copenhagen eleven days and during the greater part of that time I was being interviewed by one or another of the representatives of our intelligence department. Exactly two months later, on March 21, the western offensive broke out as I had feared.

I called at Potsdam a day or two later to attend the Kaiser again, and found him still in the same triumphant mood, and so anxious was he to get down to Italy that he called at my office three times that week to enable me to complete my work on his affected tooth.

On November 25 the Kaiser called at my office for what proved to be his last sitting. I had received word on the 20th that my pass for America had been granted and that I could leave on the 26th, and I accordingly told the Kaiser that it was my intention to leave for Copenhagen on that day.

I explained that I was completely run down—and I certainly looked it—and that it was necessary for me to get to Copenhagen anyway, so that I could get in touch with America regarding a porcelain tooth patent which had been granted to me in July, 1915, but which a large dental company was seeking to wrest from me. The patent authorities had delayed action because of the fact that I resided in an enemy country.

On the 25th I received a letter from the court chamberlain stating that the president of police had made it known to the Kaiser that I had applied for a pass to America and demanding an explanation as to why I had told the Kaiser that I had planned to go to Copenhagen and had not mentioned America.

I at once replied that it was indeed my intention, as I had told the Kaiser, to go to Copenhagen, but that I had applied for the pass to America because I wanted to be in a position to go there if my patent affairs demanded it and I expressed the hope that nothing would be done to interfere with the pass which had been promised me for the 30th.

Nevertheless, the 30th came around and the pass didn't, and the boat which sailed from Copenhagen on December 7, which I had planned to take, sailed without me.

Again the twenty weeks followed each other without the slightest intimation from anyone that I would ever be allowed to leave. Indeed, I had fully made up my mind that the authorities had decided to keep me in Berlin for reasons of their own and that nothing I could do could mend the situation, when, early in January, I received the joyous tidings that I could leave January 21-23. I left on the 22d, and as far as I have since been able to ascertain I was the last American male to leave Germany with the consent of the officials.

COUNTY TREASURER KLINE IMPROVING

The many friends of County Treasurer A. L. Kline, who was recently operated upon for gall stones at the famous Mayo Bros. hospital at Rochester, Minn., will be pleased to learn that he has so far recovered following the operation that he was able to leave the hospital yesterday and is now living in apartments in the city with Mrs. Kline and his daughter, Mrs. Edgar Stage while recuperating.

In addition to the trouble remedied by the operation it was also found that one of Mr. Kline's kidneys was seriously affected and a second operation may be performed for its removal when the patient regains strength sufficient to withstand the ordeal.

So far he is recovering finely and his family hopes to have him restored to his usual robust health shortly.

Energetic, High-Speed Executive to handle distribution to 250 Motion Picture Theatres in this district of The Mayor of Filbert, an absorbing, $200,000, eight-reel Triangle Special on the liquor question. Must know how to deal with local communities and to handle bankers and big business men and deal with the political situation with judgment and discretion.

One man—if he is big enough and fast enough—an organizer and pat in, this job is too important a job to be handled in usual trade channels.

To fail in with the advertising plan and take full advantage of the present situation local distributors must be taking contracts and setting dates on this picture, in every part of the United States, within fifteen days. So we are looking for the right man in 100 districts.

Large immediate profit for the successful ones. No matter what your present business interests—here is a chance for you and a few friends to get into the profit end of the Motion Picture business on your own account in your own district that has not even before, wouldn't have come now but for the impossibility of letting this picture take its trip in the routine of distribution—"Go, Speed is Vital."

FAREWELL RECEPTION AGAIN TONIGHT

District No. 1 of Clearfield county will send forty-three men to Camp Greenleaf Ga, tomorrow, and according to custom a farewell reception will be tendered them in the court room tonight at 8 o'clock.

Rev. J. P. McCurdy, of the Karthaus church will deliver the invocation and the address of the evening will be made by Judge Johnson of Lewisburg, Pa., who is presiding over criminal court this week for Judge Bell.

The distinguished visitor delivered the address at last night's meeting and his remarks were so able, timely and highly appreciated that the committee on Public Safety who had tonight's reception in hand were urgently requested by many of his last night's auditors to have Judge Johnson deliver the parting commendation and admonition to tonight's large contingent. The genial jurist consented to talk and all who can possibly do so should be present this evening to hear him.

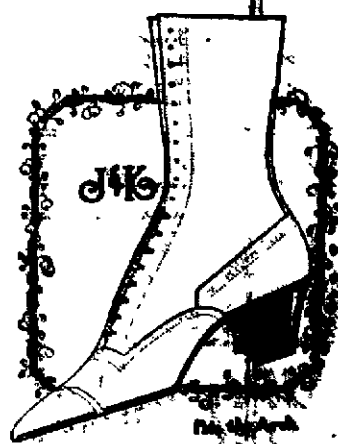

Judge Johnson has a son in the service, has already visited a number of the training camps, is active in war work in his home community and judicial district, and is particularly qualified for the duty assigned him for this evening.

A number of local young men who contemplate joining the company of home guards, soon to be organized here, drilled with today's contingent at Witmer park last night and will no doubt be on hand again tonight, when tomorrow's bunch are put through their paces.

Shoes for the high school girl and boy must be serviceable; for school life is one of the hardest tests to which shoes can be subjected. At the same time, shoes for this age must be stylish; for this is the age when habits of dress are being most strongly impressed on the mind—and the wearing of good looking shoes is a habit well worthy of encouragement. Here are shoes which fully measure up to every desired standard, at prices that you'll admit are very reasonable.

What is a Branch House?

The Branch House is the place in the packing organization where what the packing plant does for you is put where you can use it.

Both are the natural result of growth and development in the living thing they belong to.

Swift & Company Branch houses are located in distributing centers all over the country. They are fitted out with refrigerating equipment to keep meat cool, sweet and fresh.

Each one is in personal charge of a man who believes in what Swift & Company is doing for people and wants to help do it.

They are directed by men who have spent years learning how to get better meat cheaper to the places where it is needed.

Meat is shipped to the branch houses direct from the packing plants in Swift & Company's refrigerator cars, in such quantities that it can be disposed of while fresh and sweet.

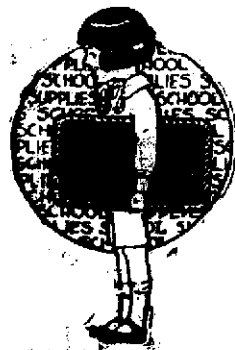

Your meat dealer comes here to buy your meat for you—unless someone else can treat him better than we can.

So you need the branch house in order to live well; and the branch house and the packing plant need each other, in order to be useful to you.

LETTER SHOWS APPRECIATION OF YANKS BY FRENCH

Extracts from a letter to A. P. Kreher from his uncle, Chas. Aubry, Paris, France.

My dear Alex:

We were made especially happy by the good news your letter of the 19th of June just brought. We read with great pleasure of the enthusiasm which reigns in your country for the great cause and which will lead us together to victory against the barbarians. On our side by celebrating your Independence Day and the participation of your superb soldiers in the observance of our France Day, we have shown to your great country our recognition of the help you bring us both in spirit and in more material forms. All together, this makes us very happy for, not only will it save us from the fate the boche are planning for us, but more especially will it give us the joy of seeing them punished—these abominable savages with their herds of thieves, assassins, veritable scum of the earth.

I had occasion recently to take a trip into one of the regions where your splendid troops are training and organizing: their number is impressive and I was no less satisfied to see with what decision and rapidity they install themselves in veritable villas built in the fields, almost as quickly as conceived, and surrounded by lines of railroad. The boches, the brutes, have gassed some of your brave men—things are on their side now, but all will be paid.

Our Fourteenth of July is over. Paris gave free course at her joyous festival to all the Allied armies without being troubled by gothas or berthas. This does not mean that we are through with these proceedings, but they move us no more than you were moved by the visit of some submarines to your shores.

Of St. Mihiel I have had no news nor do I know what has become of your uncle Edward.

I do not believe that the church where you admired the statue so much has been destroyed, but they say the boches have stolen the sculptured figures.

Everyone at my sister's home is well; they have not been bombarded for some time.

Your cousin Samuel is in the region of Chateau-Thierry with some Americans; he gets along with them very well.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

After a lapse of several months it seems good to hear the big bell on the stone school building clanging out these mornings, summoning the pupils of the three buildings to their duties. All of the schools opened up Monday morning under the most favorable circumstances for a successful term. The new principal has an almost perfect organization in all of the grades and the routine is moving along like clock work. A great many pupils are not enrolled yet, but the roster will be almost complete by the end of the week. A good and efficient corps of instructors has been installed in the grades, and good work can be expected all thru the winter term. Last winter the schools were interrupted all through the term by constantly changing of instructors, caused by the males being called to the colors. This season the board has tried to avoid a repetition of last season by selecting instructors who are not subject to military duty. It costs considerable money to maintain our schools up to the standard, and the people expect good results. It is more than likely that under the direction of Prof. Shields the pupils will not retard in their work but advance.

Local physicians report considerable sickness throughout the borough but none of the cases of a very serious nature.

From a personal letter received from Portland, O., yesterday, it is learned that the Pennsylvania division of men in the big G. A. R. parade in that city "represented the finest body of men in line, and that their column was loudly cheered and applauded all along the line of march."

It is rumored that since the P. H. & L. tannery completed its large war order for shoe leather so satisfied were the shoe men with the finish and general delivery of the same, that this plant will soon receive another large order but for a different make and finish. Mr. Blake, the superintendent, had a big task assigned to him in the last order, but he proved his ability and succeeded in finishing the contract on time and right up to specifications. Promptness, under all sorts of inconveniences, he proved himself the master hand. Mr. Blake is rated as one of the best superintendents in the employ of this great leather concern, and he sends the finest colored leathers that go into the New York sales rooms.

There is considerable talk going on among Curwensville people just now relative to asking borough council to enact a curfew law. Many believe that a law of this kind would be a vast benefit to the town as well as to the young people whom it would affect. There is one thing normally sure, if such a law were passed, the parent would know just where the children were after a certain hour. Most of the small fry would be at home studying their school lessons.

Bruce Draucker has opened a coal mine on the Walter Norris farm, near town. The coal is a good house grade and will be sold and delivered in the domestic market.

Geo. W. Gray, of Clearfield, was a Curwensville visitor yesterday.

A few huckleberries and blackberries are still coming into the market. Price on the former 20 cents and the latter 15 cents. Elderberries are selling at 5 cents per quart.

Even Chronic cases of 20 to 30 Years standing, with profuse bleeding, have been completely cured in from three to ten days

No discovery of recent years in the field of medicine has caused such a stir amongst the medical profession as the recent discovery that piles can be successfully treated and cured at home by a wonderful prescription known to druggists as Miro Pile Remedy.

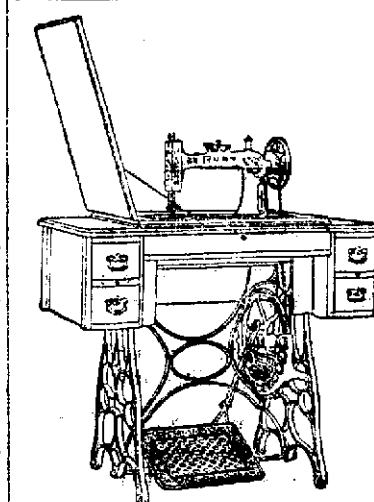

It has been proved that so called external remedies applied or inserted into the rectum cannot cure piles and at the best only give temporary relief. This is also true of surgical operations which simply remove them after formation, but in no wise act on the source of the trouble. This prescription, although taken internally, is not digested in the stomach, but is rapidly passed on unchanged to the intestines in a short time, reaching the exact place where by its soothing, healing action, it first

HOME TALENT SHOW FEATURES ARE SURE TO PLEASE

Clearfield is to be congratulated on securing for the Driggs Theatre, the middle of September, "The Land of Let's Pretend," which will be given for three nights, with Clearfield's leading dramatic and vocal talent. The players will be surrounded by an exceptionally large chorus of the best singers and dancers available and a wealth of scenery and costumes.

The books and lyrics are well balanced with excellent character comedy and cover comedy, drama and vaudeville of the highest order. The musical compositions are splendid and very catchy, so much that many of the audience will be humming the strains with the chorus.

The scenery used in the production will be found original and very good, and the costumes dainty, picturesque and varied.

The production is being staged by Montimer Shuter, of New York, well known for his ability by the theatre going public and especially for the productions presented on tour under his management, such as the "The Pink Lady," "The Little Cafe" and others of like magnitude. The rehearsals are being conducted daily owing to the massiveness of this revue.

Seats will shortly be placed on sale.

LOCAL ARTISTS IN CAST

Although brimming over with novelty and abounding in clever entertainments "The Music Revue," "The Land of Let's Pretend" does not depend upon those for success. The company is a large one, comprising over two hundred of Clearfield's best dramatic, musical and dancing artists, and there will be found excellent volume of voice among the principals and chorus, sprightliness abundant among the dancers, and scenic embellishments sufficient to make this revue an offering of more than worth while.

The production represents a type of entertainment which approaches the ideal in musical comedy circles and can be classed as an individual performance of distinct merit. Clearfield is fortunate in securing the revue for their benefit performance at the New Driggs Theatre to be given three nights, during the middle of September under the auspices of the Navy League of Clearfield.

TYLPHOID EPIDEMIC AT HASTINGS

Johnstown, Pa., September 3.—Stricken with an epidemic of typhoid fever which has already spread throughout the entire town and claims 50 sufferers, Hastings, a Cambria county coal mining town, today made an appeal to the Cambria county chapter of the Red Cross for beds and bedding for 50 beds, with which to equip an emergency hospital in the Hastings municipal building. Because of there being but one physician and two nurses in the town, it was found necessary to centralize patients.

Every effort is being made to care for the sick. Emergency workers of the Red Cross were called to county headquarters here tonight, to make sheets and other equipment groups of women responding to the call for civilian relief which had been approved by the national headquarters. Within 24 hours the hospital will be equipped it is promised.

War service has claimed all but one of the physicians of Hastings, and only two nurses are in the town. Coal companies are making a determined effort to recruit nurses. The municipal building, which is being converted into an emergency hospital is 60 by 70 feet, and ample for cases on hand.

A COURT OF INTERNATIONAL JUSTICE

It is not surprising that the stock market treats peace rumors with contempt, and that its movements are governed by other and more tangible influence. Suggestions, not all coming from Germany, are sufficiently absurd. They propose that the burglar on trial shall be punished by the surrender of that part of his loot which is already spent or destroyed, and in order not to wound his sensitive honor, he shall be allowed to retain his jimmy.

German pleas in defense are sufficiently remarkable in all conscience. They irresistibly recall that veracious story of Mark Twain, of the young man who had murdered his mother and father in atrocious circumstances. When asked by the judge, before sentence, what he had to offer in extenuation he pleaded for mercy on the ground that he was an orphan. There is the German plea ad misericordiam exactly.

But those who talk of peace conferences, even after Germany has unmistakably bowed to the will and superior power of the civilized world, completely fail to see the radical changes which the war has wrought. The old peace conference is dead. To Bourbons like Lord Lansdowne, steeped in the old methods of diplomacy, it seems possible to revive the old secret negotiations behind closed doors, with private bargains where those most concerned are least consulted and where the final outcome is enough to make the sacrificed soldiers turn in their honored graves.

But if we know our aims, and it is believed that we do, a peace settlement will be accomplished, not with all parties in the war represented, but by a court of justice with Germany in the dock. She will not be asked what she is willing to concede, but will be told what penalty she will be allowed and compelled to pay. On the moral obliquity and devastating ruin of her acts it is difficult to imagine a penalty which covers the case. But let our peace mongers be well assured that the decision involves a penalty and not a compromise.—Wall Street Journal.

LENS AND SOISSONS

Although all the afternoon papers yesterday carried stories of the effect that Lens had fallen to the British and this morning many of the daily papers cling tenaciously to their claim, the United Press today says that the report of the capture of Lens is premature. Here we have a case similar to the reported capture of Soissons a few weeks ago. As was the case at Soissons, the British advance on Lens has been so rapid that it was reasonable to believe that Lens was already in the hands of the Tommies. It will be remembered that Soissons was under gun fire for weeks before the Allies announced its capture and occupation and we may safely predict that Lens is to experience a similar bombardment. It is generally understood that before an army can occupy a given point, the territory opposite must be cleared of opposition and in view of the advances being made today all along the line, no doubt the big clearance is now under way and when the proper moment comes, Lens will be occupied by Haig's valiant troops. While we may feel disappointed that Lens is not safe and secure in British hands we have the satisfaction of knowing that from the Allied standpoint the gains made by the Allies in the last week are greater than in any preceding week. All things considered, the victory gained is great enough in itself to satisfy anybody.

The Kaiser as I Knew Him For Fourteen Years

ammunition and supplies and food and hospital supplies in the valleys below, in preparation for their twelfth Isouzo offensive.

"We let them go ahead and waited patiently for the right moment. They thought that their contemplated offensive must inevitably bring our weaker neighbor to her knees and force her to make a separate peace!" By "our weaker neighbor" the Kaiser, of course, referred to Austria, and how accurate was his information regarding Italy's expectations and how easily they might have been realized were subsequently revealed by the publication of that famous letter from Kaiser Karl to Prince Sixtus.

"And then," the Kaiser went on, "when their great offensive was within a week of being launched we broke through their lines on a slope 3,000 feet high, covered with snow, where they couldn't bring up their reserves or new guns, and we surrounded them!"

"We took practically everything they possessed—food enough to feed our entire army without calling upon our own supplies at all. Never before had our armies seen such an accumulation of ammunition. I must certainly go down to see it."

"We cut off their northern retreat and, as they swung their army to the south we captured 60,000 of them up to their knees in the rice fields. One of the great mistakes they made was in carrying their civilian refugees with them—clogging their narrow roads and impeding the retreat of their soldiers. We had taken possession of their most productive regions, and their retreat was through territory which yielded them nothing. Just think of that retreating army thrown upon the already impoverished inhabitants of that section. Why, they'll starve to death!"

"Everywhere we went we found their big guns abandoned. In one small village we came upon a gun decorated with flowers and surmounted with a portrait of Emperor Franz Josef. It had been put there by the Italian inhabitants of the village to show their happiness at being released at last from the yoke of the intolerable Italian lawyer government! How terribly the Italians must have treated them! Italy will never get over this defeat. This was real help from God! Now, we've got the allies!" and he struck his left hand with his right with great force to emphasize his apparent conviction that the turning point in the war had been reached with Italy's collapse.

That the Kaiser now regarded himself and his armies as invincible I felt, and I feared that the success in Italy would be followed at the first favorable opportunity by a gigantic offensive on the western front.

Indeed, on a subsequent occasion, when he called at my office for further treatment, and again referred to the Italian triumph, he remarked: "If our armies could capture 300,000 Italians—and those 300,000 might just as well be dead as far as Italy is concerned—we can do the same thing against our enemies on the west!"

This was one of the interviews I was so anxious to report to the representatives of the American intelligence department at our legation in Copenhagen and later on, when I finally arrived in that city, I related it in great detail to them. I remained in Copenhagen eleven days and during the greater part of that time I was being interviewed by one or another of the representatives of our intelligence department. Exactly two months later, on March 21, the western offensive broke out as I had feared.

I called at Potsdam a day or two later to attend the Kaiser again, and found him still in the same triumphant mood, and so anxious was he to get down to Italy that he called at my office three times that week to enable me to complete my work on his affected tooth.

On November 25 the Kaiser called at my office for what proved to be his last sitting. I had received word on the 20th that my pass for America had been granted and that I could leave on the 26th, and I accordingly told the Kaiser that it was my intention to leave for Copenhagen on that day.

I explained that I was completely run down—and I certainly looked it—and that it was necessary for me to get to Copenhagen anyway, so that I could get in touch with America regarding a porcelain tooth patent which had been granted to me in July, 1915, but which a large dental company was seeking to wrest from me. The patent authorities had delayed action because of the fact that I resided in an enemy country.

On the 25th I received a letter from the court chamberlain stating that the president of police had made it known to the Kaiser that I had applied for a pass to America and demanding an explanation as to why I had told the Kaiser that I had planned to go to Copenhagen and had not mentioned America.

I at once replied that it was indeed my intention, as I had told the Kaiser, to go to Copenhagen, but that I had applied for the pass to America because I wanted to be in a position to go there if my patent affairs demanded it and I expressed the hope that nothing would be done to interfere with the pass which had been promised me for the 30th.

Nevertheless, the 30th came around and the pass didn't, and the boat which sailed from Copenhagen on December 7, which I had planned to take, sailed without me.

Again the twenty weeks followed each other without the slightest intimation from anyone that I would ever be allowed to leave. Indeed, I had fully made up my mind that the authorities had decided to keep me in Berlin for reasons of their own and that nothing I could do could mend the situation, when, early in January, I received the joyous tidings that I could leave January 21-23. I left on the 22d, and as far as I have since been able to ascertain I was the last American male to leave Germany with the consent of the officials.

COUNTY TREASURER KLINE IMPROVING

The many friends of County Treasurer A. L. Kline, who was recently operated upon for gall stones at the famous Mayo Bros. hospital at Rochester, Minn., will be pleased to learn that he has so far recovered following the operation that he was able to leave the hospital yesterday and is now living in apartments in the city with Mrs. Kline and his daughter, Mrs. Edgar Stage while recuperating.

In addition to the trouble remedied by the operation it was also found that one of Mr. Kline's kidneys was seriously affected and a second operation may be performed for its removal when the patient regains strength sufficient to withstand the ordeal.

So far he is recovering finely and his family hopes to have him restored to his usual robust health shortly.

FAREWELL RECEPTION AGAIN TONIGHT

District No. 1 of Clearfield county will send forty-three men to Camp Greenleaf Ga, tomorrow, and according to custom a farewell reception will be tendered them in the court room tonight at 8 o'clock.

Rev. J. P. McCurdy, of the Karthaus church will deliver the invocation and the address of the evening will be made by Judge Johnson of Lewisburg, Pa., who is presiding over criminal court this week for Judge Bell.

The distinguished visitor delivered the address at last night's meeting and his remarks were so able, timely and highly appreciated that the committee on Public Safety who had tonight's reception in hand were urgently requested by many of his last night's auditors to have Judge Johnson deliver the parting commendation and admonition to tonight's large contingent. The genial jurist consented to talk and all who can possibly do so should be present this evening to hear him.

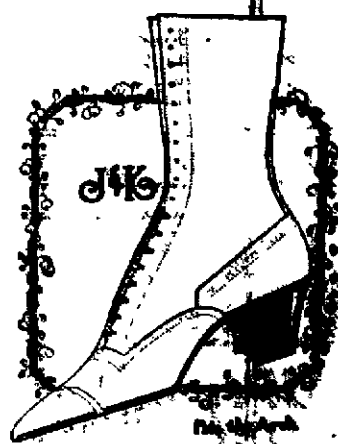

Judge Johnson has a son in the service, has already visited a number of the training camps, is active in war work in his home community and judicial district, and is particularly qualified for the duty assigned him for this evening.

A number of local young men who contemplate joining the company of home guards, soon to be organized here, drilled with today's contingent at Witmer park last night and will no doubt be on hand again tonight, when tomorrow's bunch are put through their paces.

FOR HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

Shoes for the high school girl and boy must be serviceable; for school life is one of the hardest tests to which shoes can be subjected. At the same time, shoes for this age must be stylish; for this is the age when habits of dress are being most strongly impressed on the mind—and the wearing of good looking shoes is a habit well worthy of encouragement. Here are shoes which fully measure up to every desired standard, at prices that you'll admit are very reasonable.

What is a Branch House?

The Branch House is the place in the packing organization where what the packing plant does for you is put where you can use it.

Both are the natural result of growth and development in the living thing they belong to.

Swift & Company Branch houses are located in distributing centers all over the country. They are fitted out with refrigerating equipment to keep meat cool, sweet and fresh.

Each one is in personal charge of a man who believes in what Swift & Company is doing for people and wants to help do it.

They are directed by men who have spent years learning how to get better meat cheaper to the places where it is needed.

Meat is shipped to the branch houses direct from the packing plants in Swift & Company's refrigerator cars, in such quantities that it can be disposed of while fresh and sweet.

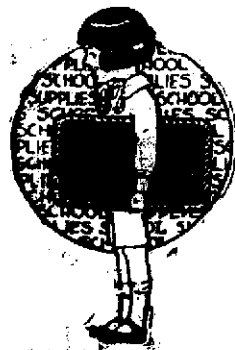

Your meat dealer comes here to buy your meat for you—unless someone else can treat him better than we can.

So you need the branch house in order to live well; and the branch house and the packing plant need each other, in order to be useful to you.

LETTER SHOWS APPRECIATION OF YANKS BY FRENCH

Extracts from a letter to A. P. Kreher from his uncle, Chas. Aubry, Paris, France.

My dear Alex:

We were made especially happy by the good news your letter of the 19th of June just brought. We read with great pleasure of the enthusiasm which reigns in your country for the great cause and which will lead us together to victory against the barbarians. On our side by celebrating your Independence Day and the participation of your superb soldiers in the observance of our France Day, we have shown to your great country our recognition of the help you bring us both in spirit and in more material forms. All together, this makes us very happy for, not only will it save us from the fate the boche are planning for us, but more especially will it give us the joy of seeing them punished—these abominable savages with their herds of thieves, assassins, veritable scum of the earth.

I had occasion recently to take a trip into one of the regions where your splendid troops are training and organizing: their number is impressive and I was no less satisfied to see with what decision and rapidity they install themselves in veritable villas built in the fields, almost as quickly as conceived, and surrounded by lines of railroad. The boches, the brutes, have gassed some of your brave men—things are on their side now, but all will be paid.

Our Fourteenth of July is over. Paris gave free course at her joyous festival to all the Allied armies without being troubled by gothas or berthas. This does not mean that we are through with these proceedings, but they move us no more than you were moved by the visit of some submarines to your shores.

Of St. Mihiel I have had no news nor do I know what has become of your uncle Edward.

I do not believe that the church where you admired the statue so much has been destroyed, but they say the boches have stolen the sculptured figures.

Everyone at my sister's home is well; they have not been bombarded for some time.

Your cousin Samuel is in the region of Chateau-Thierry with some Americans; he gets along with them very well.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

After a lapse of several months it seems good to hear the big bell on the stone school building clanging out these mornings, summoning the pupils of the three buildings to their duties. All of the schools opened up Monday morning under the most favorable circumstances for a successful term. The new principal has an almost perfect organization in all of the grades and the routine is moving along like clock work. A great many pupils are not enrolled yet, but the roster will be almost complete by the end of the week. A good and efficient corps of instructors has been installed in the grades, and good work can be expected all thru the winter term. Last winter the schools were interrupted all through the term by constantly changing of instructors, caused by the males being called to the colors. This season the board has tried to avoid a repetition of last season by selecting instructors who are not subject to military duty. It costs considerable money to maintain our schools up to the standard, and the people expect good results. It is more than likely that under the direction of Prof. Shields the pupils will not retard in their work but advance.

Local physicians report considerable sickness throughout the borough but none of the cases of a very serious nature.

From a personal letter received from Portland, O., yesterday, it is learned that the Pennsylvania division of men in the big G. A. R. parade in that city "represented the finest body of men in line, and that their column was loudly cheered and applauded all along the line of march."

It is rumored that since the P. H. & L. tannery completed its large war order for shoe leather so satisfied were the shoe men with the finish and general delivery of the same, that this plant will soon receive another large order but for a different make and finish. Mr. Blake, the superintendent, had a big task assigned to him in the last order, but he proved his ability and succeeded in finishing the contract on time and right up to specifications. Promptness, under all sorts of inconveniences, he proved himself the master hand. Mr. Blake is rated as one of the best superintendents in the employ of this great leather concern, and he sends the finest colored leathers that go into the New York sales rooms.

There is considerable talk going on among Curwensville people just now relative to asking borough council to enact a curfew law. Many believe that a law of this kind would be a vast benefit to the town as well as to the young people whom it would affect. There is one thing normally sure, if such a law were passed, the parent would know just where the children were after a certain hour. Most of the small fry would be at home studying their school lessons.

Bruce Draucker has opened a coal mine on the Walter Norris farm, near town. The coal is a good house grade and will be sold and delivered in the domestic market.

Geo. W. Gray, of Clearfield, was a Curwensville visitor yesterday.

A few huckleberries and blackberries are still coming into the market. Price on the former 20 cents and the latter 15 cents. Elderberries are selling at 5 cents per quart.

Pile Sufferers! Clever Ohio Chemist Says This Great Prescription Taken Internally Has Never Failed

Even Chronic cases of 20 to 30 Years standing, with profuse bleeding, have been completely cured in from three to ten days

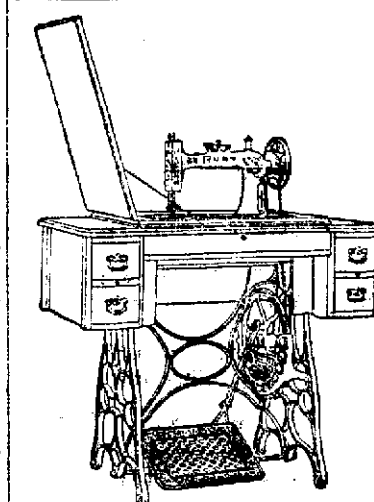

No discovery of recent years in the field of medicine has caused such a stir amongst the medical profession as the recent discovery that piles can be successfully treated and cured at home by a wonderful prescription known to druggists as Miro Pile Remedy. It has been proved that so called external remedies applied or inserted into the rectum cannot cure piles and at the best only give temporary relief. This is also true of surgical operations which simply remove them after formation, but in no wise act on the source of the trouble. This prescription, although taken internally, is not digested in the stomach, but is rapidly passed on unchanged to the intestines in a short time, reaching the exact place where by its soothing, healing action, it first

HOME TALENT SHOW FEATURES ARE SURE TO PLEASE

Clearfield is to be congratulated on securing for the Driggs Theatre, the middle of September, "The Land of Let's Pretend," which will be given for three nights, with Clearfield's leading dramatic and vocal talent. The players will be surrounded by an exceptionally large chorus of the best singers and dancers available and a wealth of scenery and costumes.

The books and lyrics are well balanced with excellent character comedy and cover comedy, drama and vaudeville of the highest order. The musical compositions are splendid and very catchy, so much that many of the audience will be humming the strains with the chorus.

The scenery used in the production will be found original and very good, and the costumes dainty, picturesque and varied.

The production is being staged by Montimer Shuter, of New York, well known for his ability by the theatre going public and especially for the productions presented on tour under his management, such as the "The Pink Lady," "The Little Cafe" and others of like magnitude. The rehearsals are being conducted daily owing to the massiveness of this revue.

Seats will shortly be placed on sale.

LOCAL ARTISTS IN CAST

Although brimming over with novelty and abounding in clever entertainments "The Music Revue," "The Land of Let's Pretend" does not depend upon those for success. The company is a large one, comprising over two hundred of Clearfield's best dramatic, musical and dancing artists, and there will be found excellent volume of voice among the principals and chorus, sprightliness abundant among the dancers, and scenic embellishments sufficient to make this revue an offering of more than worth while.

The production represents a type of entertainment which approaches the ideal in musical comedy circles and can be classed as an individual performance of distinct merit. Clearfield is fortunate in securing the revue for their benefit performance at the New Driggs Theatre to be given three nights, during the middle of September under the auspices of the Navy League of Clearfield.

TYLPHOID EPIDEMIC AT HASTINGS

Johnstown, Pa., September 3.—Stricken with an epidemic of typhoid fever which has already spread throughout the entire town and claims 50 sufferers, Hastings, a Cambria county coal mining town, today made an appeal to the Cambria county chapter of the Red Cross for beds and bedding for 50 beds, with which to equip an emergency hospital in the Hastings municipal building. Because of there being but one physician and two nurses in the town, it was found necessary to centralize patients.

Every effort is being made to care for the sick. Emergency workers of the Red Cross were called to county headquarters here tonight, to make sheets and other equipment groups of women responding to the call for civilian relief which had been approved by the national headquarters. Within 24 hours the hospital will be equipped it is promised.

War service has claimed all but one of the physicians of Hastings, and only two nurses are in the town. Coal companies are making a determined effort to recruit nurses. The municipal building, which is being converted into an emergency hospital is 60 by 70 feet, and ample for cases on hand.
